DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claims 39-71 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Claim 39 recites “a formatted optical medium having a formatting pattern including registration marks of controlled size and length for enabling data to be written to or read from a desired location in a monolithic bulk of the optical medium, said registration marks being arranged in at least one base layer; the at least one base layer being formed within a bulk of the optical medium displaced from an outer surface thereof.” These limitations are not considered as conventional in the art or known to one of ordinary skill in the art. The same limitations are recited in independent claims 44 & 57, therefore these limitations are considered as essential and critical features of the invention. There is lack of adequate written description for these claim limitations in the specification. Besides reciting these claim limitations in the originally-filed claims, the specification, at most, recites these claim limitations only in the “Summary” section. The claimed invention has not been described with sufficient particularity such that one skilled in the art would recognize that the applicant had possession of the claimed invention, e.g., reciting the details of the invention in the body of the specification and showing the components in the drawings. For these reasons, claims 39-71 fail to satisfy the written description requirement of 35 U.S.C. § 112, 1st paragraph. Furthermore, the dependent claims also recite limitations that have not been sufficiently described in the specification, except in the original claims themselves.

See Regents of the University of California v. Eli Lilly, 119 F.3d 1559, 1566, 43 USPQ2d 1398, 1404 (Fed. Cir. 1997), cert. denied, 523 U.S. 1089 (1998). “The written description requirement implements the principle that a patent must describe the technology that is sought to be patented; the requirement serves both to satisfy the inventor’s obligation to disclose the technologic knowledge upon which the patent is based, and to demonstrate that the patentee was in possession of the invention that is claimed.” Capon v. Eshhar, 418 F.3d 1349, 1357, 76 USPQ2d 1078, 1084 (Fed. Cir. 2005). Further, the written description requirement promotes the progress of the useful arts by ensuring that patentees adequately describe their inventions in their patent specifications in exchange for the right to exclude others from practicing the invention for the duration of the patent’s term. An applicant shows possession of the claimed invention by describing the claimed invention with all of its limitations using such descriptive means as words, structures, figures, diagrams, and formulas that fully set forth the claimed invention. Lockwood v. American Airlines, Inc., 107 F.3d 1565, 1572, 41 USPQ2d 1961, 1966 (Fed. Cir. 1997).
